Riding through a field of green a knight searched for his way
His thoughts were for his maiden fair who lived far away
The king had sent him a decree, he could not soon be wed
Until he'd gone to prove himself, and killed a dragon dead

[So, he went on] his way

Through the night, and the bright day

The hills grew steep and rocky, so he left his steed behind
Alone with shield and sword he went, not knowing what he'd find
O'er craggy peak and mountain glen, he searched both high and low
His pursuit of the dragon's den seemed to go mighty slow

[Still he went on] his way
D           G
Through the night, and the bright day
D           G   C   A
He knew he would not fail his love

His hobbit princess warmed her heart, with dreams of days to come
With thoughts of castles in the sky, and children in the home
But the black knight of the castle planned to have her as his wife
He forced the king to accept his plan at the point of a deadly knife

[Meanwhile her knight worked to find] his way

Through the night, and the bright day
D           G   C   A
He knew he would not fail his love

The morning broke across the sky as he reached a lonely ledge
But the fire came from the dragon, who's lair was near the edge
His fight was brave and valiant, the dragon he soon slew
Then he saw the wrong flag at the castle, so to his horse he flew

[The sad part is her knight lost] his way
D           G
Through the night, and the bright day

He and she together failed in their love, failed in their love
